

DAILY HERALD.

THIS PAPER is kept on file at the office of the publisher, and is loaned to subscribers on request. It is also loaned to subscribers on request.

Herald Steam Printing House. The Herald Steam Printing House is not a printing office, but a place where the public can get their work done. It is a place where the public can get their work done.

Special Notice. The Herald is a newspaper of the city of Los Angeles, and is published every day except on Sundays and holidays. It is a newspaper of the city of Los Angeles, and is published every day except on Sundays and holidays.

The Herald is a newspaper of the city of Los Angeles, and is published every day except on Sundays and holidays. It is a newspaper of the city of Los Angeles, and is published every day except on Sundays and holidays.

It is now apparent that the redoubtable Cutting will be released on parole. This is a very important matter, and it is a very important matter.

The Republican leaders are already en route to the city of Los Angeles. This is a very important matter, and it is a very important matter.

The publishers of the Herald have been very annoyed by the delay in the receipt of their new press. This is a very important matter, and it is a very important matter.

The Democratic County Convention, which yesterday nominated delegates to the Democratic State Convention, which meets in San Francisco on the 31st inst., acquitted itself of its task with great judgment and political sagacity. The resolutions are everything that could be desired, while the delegation is composed of the most distinguished and able men from this county to a similar body.

There is one privilege enjoyed by the editor of a popular journal in Los Angeles, which his less fortunate brethren in San Francisco know nothing of, viz, the receipt of numerous watermelons, specially large clusters of grapes, and cases of native wines and brandies. These last are delivered from our sanctum as quickly as we can, for fear of shocking the sensibilities of well meaning people. Nevertheless, as we write, our eye rests upon a monster melon labeled "George Hearst." In the simplicity of its periphery it suggests a watermelon, but in its center it is a monster melon.

PERHAPS one of the most eccentric features in local journalism is the attempt which our eccentric contemporary, the Times, is making to excite certain prominent taxpayers up to the point of a reputation of their taxes. County Assessor Biddens has made a highly capable and painstaking official. He has acquitted himself of the duties of a tax collector in a very efficient manner. A short time ago he was the victim of an illness that very nearly ended his life and usefulness. Through an accident pure and simple during the convalescence the assessments of several of the leading taxpayers were put into a wrong drawer and were temporarily overlooked. When the error was discovered it was promptly rectified. The citizens concerned have not the slightest desire of repudiating their taxes; and yet this journal acts as if it would be delighted if they should do so. Probably partisan malice could not be carried to a greater extent than this. The general public take no stock in the evidently malignant partisan crusades. Biddens has made an admirable and efficient official, and the people recognize the fact.

THE HERALD can claim for itself the distinction of having started the present boom for the benefit of Governor Hearst. This initiative has taken like a house afire, and the Democratic press of California are standing in very cordiality. Our esteemed contemporary, the San Bernardino Times, had the following to say the other day in this connection: "The name of George Hearst for Governor is being used frequently all over the State and that gentleman is growing in favor. That he is the strongest man the Democrats could bring forward is unquestioned. He is a popular ally with miners and agriculturists. He has worked his way to the ladder to his present position. He is an able business man, and a shrewd politician, and in every respect thoroughly competent for the position. With George Hearst for Governor the standard bearer, the Democratic party of California would march to victory. There is a keen sense of the fact that the Democrats are making a large, and that leads them to endeavor to make amends, if possible, for wrong inflicting. This feeling is now greatly in favor of Mr. Hearst. During his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

ing his short career in the United States Senate he has done remarkably well, and given promise of a brilliant future. But by the action of the legislature his career has been cut short, and a feeling of popular sympathy exists for him that would aid him materially in his success were he nominated for Governor. Now is this feeling for him wholly sentimental. We have learned much about him during his short Senatorial term, and he is shown to us that he is more than a minor man; that in combination with all these qualities he is a statesman, and realizing this, our sympathy for him is the greater, and it will have an effect on election day if he be nominated. This world is full of unrest. It is in much such a condition as Europe was before the peculiar developments of 1848. The forces of disruption and agitation are in the air, and they are persons who are, in many respects, remarkable, not necessarily on account of intellectual or moral gifts, but because they have lived to an extreme old age. It is needless to say that we refer to the Emperor Wilhelm and to Queen Victoria. There is a great deal in the modifying character of a man or a woman. Why the length of time they have lived in the world should have such an overshadowing significance is, of course, beyond our ken, but it has all the same. Away back in 1848 there was no man so cordially hated in Germany as the present Emperor Wilhelm. He trod the revolutionaryists under the hoofs of his vindictiveness of a baron of the Middle Ages. No man was so cordially hated as he, and he was decades in reconciling himself to the people; but age did for him what other agency could not. It is the same with Victoria. Her reign will be memorable not only for its literature but for its length. George III. reigned until he ran into drooling idiocy; and Victoria, while she may escape this latter visitation, bids fair to live as long as the famous man, George King, who wanted to know how they got the dumplings into its cover of dough. In a short time they will be celebrating their fiftieth year on the throne. With these two venerable persons removed from the theater of European life, lightning changes are liable to be reported all over Europe. Victoria may protract the period of abatement from agitation a long while in England. She may even survive Albert Edward himself. But the Emperor Wilhelm, in the course of nature, is bound to surrender his trust shortly. More emphatically than any man who has lived in Europe for centuries, he can reach the cry, "After me the deluge." Wilhelm once off the scene the new era will begin in earnest.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Cutting Still Excites Some Attention.

HE WILL BE RELEASED.

And Will Make a Claim for Heavy Damages Which Mexico Will Have to Pay.

Special to the Herald by the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, August 21.—No intimation has been received at the State Department of the alleged purpose of the Mexicans to pardon Cutting as soon as he shall have entered upon his term of imprisonment, but there is a disposition to believe that some way will soon be found to release him and thus get rid of the annoying complication. Should this be done merely as an act of expediency on the part of the Mexican authorities without any avowed recognition of the claim of extra territorial jurisdiction, this Government will then undertake the task of securing such recognition so far as American citizens are concerned, since the claim is held to be absolute to all the principles of modern international law, as recognized and practiced by the nations which make any pretense to civilization.

COMING EAST FOR CUTTING.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

EL PASO, August 21.—By a special dispatch to the El Paso Times it is just learned that yesterday the second chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Chihuahua took up the case of A. K. Cutting, and after fully reviewing the entire written evidence argued before it, did not last long. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor. The majority of the court was in favor of releasing him, and the case was decided in his favor.

feeling prevailed, and under the lead of Lauckmann practical advances were made. In the last hour prices sagged off the market closed rather low, but at insignificant changes from the opening prices.

The New York Stock Market. New York, August 21.—There were no Government bonds, 1004; four per cent, 120; four and a half per cent, 119; Central Pacific, 42; Denver & Rio Grande, 20; Kansas & Texas, 31; Northern Pacific, 27; preferred, 29; Chicago & Northwestern, 11; New York Central, 10; Oregon Navigation, 10; Transcontinental, 31; Oregon Improvement, 23; Pacific Mail Steamship, 50; Texas & Pacific, 10; Union Pacific, 55; United States Express, 64; Wells, Fargo & Co's Express, 126; Western Union Telegraph, 62.

New York Money Market. New York, August 21.—Money on call, 3 to 4 per cent, closing at 3; 4 to 5 per cent, prime negotiable paper, 4 to 5 per cent; sterling exchange, quiet and steady; actual rates, $4.81 for sixty day bills; $4.83 for ninety day bills.

Petroleum. New York, August 21.—Petroleum—Steady. United Pipe Line closed at 63 1/2 per barrel.

Mineral Stocks. San Francisco, August 21.—Crocker, 45; Savage, 22 1/2; Hale & Crocker, 160; Ophir, 120.

The Grain Market. San Francisco, August 21.—Wheat—Quiet. Good shipping, $1.35 per cental; barley—Good feed, 25-26 1/2 per cental; brewing, $1.00 1/2.

Chicago, August 21.—Corn—Weaker. Corn, 41 1/2 per cental; No. 2, 42 1/2 per cental; No. 3, 43 1/2 per cental; No. 4, 44 1/2 per cental; No. 5, 45 1/2 per cental; No. 6, 46 1/2 per cental; No. 7, 47 1/2 per cental; No. 8, 48 1/2 per cental; No. 9, 49 1/2 per cental; No. 10, 50 1/2 per cental; No. 11, 51 1/2 per cental; No. 12, 52 1/2 per cental; No. 13, 53 1/2 per cental; No. 14, 54 1/2 per cental; No. 15, 55 1/2 per cental; No. 16, 56 1/2 per cental; No. 17, 57 1/2 per cental; No. 18, 58 1/2 per cental; No. 19, 59 1/2 per cental; No. 20, 60 1/2 per cental; No. 21, 61 1/2 per cental; No. 22, 62 1/2 per cental; No. 23, 63 1/2 per cental; No. 24, 64 1/2 per cental; No. 25, 65 1/2 per cental; No. 26, 66 1/2 per cental; No. 27, 67 1/2 per cental; No. 28, 68 1/2 per cental; No. 29, 69 1/2 per cental; No. 30, 70 1/2 per cental; No. 31, 71 1/2 per cental; No. 32, 72 1/2 per cental; No. 33, 73 1/2 per cental; No. 34, 74 1/2 per cental; No. 35, 75 1/2 per cental; No. 36, 76 1/2 per cental; No. 37, 77 1/2 per cental; No. 38, 78 1/2 per cental; No. 39, 79 1/2 per cental; No. 40, 80

1

FORNIA

CATARRH CURE.

R-CURE!

Positive CURE for Catarrh,
Cough, Hay Fever, Nose Cold,
Sore and Sore Eyes, Restlessness, and much more, removes all itching, redness, swelling, and discharge, and results in health and pleasure to use. Follow the directions.

DR. J. H. HANFORD, 77 and 79
West

NEWMARK & CO., Wholesale Agents

COLLEGE.

ADIES,
Prof. R. M. Pres.
July 25th

place!

SLES!

nd Avenue

ected For Avenues, now able prices, ure the essed.

ree of Los Angeles'
d to each pur-Tract.

CO.,
(Childress Bank).

NG AGENTS.

HEADQUARTERS,
TATES MOTEL,
Original, Pistols and Ammunition, no need of self protection. Telephone No. 286. Service

PHS.

R DOZ.

BEE.

EET,
graphs at $3 per dozen.
price. Compare the actual

ESS SATISFACTORY
e of Charge.

ST STREET.

TRACT.

50.

T RAILROAD.

rated Location,
Free:

RCHILD, reet. [120-1m]

rose.

anded by Messrs. Keyser & Curry has been leased by the throughout in the most statements. The house will be equalled well and every
use. The house is lighted
This establishment is the most popular fam-rooms single or en suite.

UMMERFIELD, PROP

I BATHS,

ANGELES,

are now under new manage to make them what
CURRY as well as a source
This establishment is the Southern California, and at that (outside of San Francisco) Roman Elec-

together with a VALUABLE TRIP to any auditor. Give express a D.R. T. A. 50.0000. 10

No. 284 Baker Block, Express copy.

F. B. R. Ticket office. auloti | F. B. MUL

ARD, Manager and Superintendent.

THE LOS ANGELES

IMMIGRATION & LAND CO-OPERATIVE ASS'N
Incorporated 1874.
JOMAS A. GAREY, President. ISAAC S. SMITH, Secretary
OFFICE, 28 WEST FIRST STREET.

FOR SALE.

"000—$8 acres. "Citrus Plateau." The best location for a first-class sanitarium or for sanitary homes in Southern California. Near trunk line of L. A. & S. O. V. R. P. Elevation 160 feet above sea level; no frosts; no fog; reasonable climate. The home for convalescents and sanatoriums. An ample supply of pure mountain water for the tract; iron pipes and cement conduits, extended—one reservoir large orange orchard; full set ornamental deciduous fruit trees. Cottage of six rooms; lawn and statumetal shrubbery. The grandest view and finest scenery in the State This is a valuable property to entitle.

"00—Cottages, six rooms and bath, and lot, No. 917 Downey avenue; nicely improved lawn and valuable shrubbery.

Best Front on Upper Main, running through and fronting on New High street—A Sanitarium.

Sale—25 fine lots in Peterson's Subdivision of Lot 6, Block 7, of Workman & Heilman's Sub Tr.—San. Heights. These lots are all set to grapes and fruit of different kind, and will go well on the installment plan. One hundred dollars down; ten dollars per month, payable quarterly.—Interest ten per cent per annum. Come soon, these lots will be sold hot cakes. For price see map at 28 W. First st.

WANTED—To purchase a large tract of good land, with water, in Los Angeles county Correspondence solicited. n-175

MANY ARE SURPRISED TO FIND US SO BUSY
in the midst of Summer, but when they look around and see the goods and hear our prices, surprise changes, and none wonder at the busy times around us.

We are Busy Selling
4 CENT
Ladies' pretty figures—goods worth a better money.

We are Busy Selling
25 CENT
Pure Silk Mitts—goods that are worth 50 cents.

We are Busy Selling
95 CENT
Men's Calico Wrappers, lined in the waist and ruffled.

We are Busy Selling
25 CENT
Men's Maslin Chemise, neatly trimmed or ruffled.

We are Busy Selling
15 CENT
Men's Lace Trimmed Bonnets—neat and serviceable.

We are Busy Selling
$1.75
Men's Silk and Satin Parasols. You will find among them goods worth $2.50, $1.50 and $1.50, all at one price.

We are Busy Selling
25 CENT
Ladies' Shade Hats. Former price 50 and 60 cents.

We are Busy Selling
75 CENT
Boys' Cashmere Pants—strong wearing and pretty apron lap.

We are Busy Selling
89 CENT
Black and Colored Sarah Bluffs. Pure silk and formerly sold at $1.55.

We are Busy Selling
75 CENT
Gold Band Window Shade, made of opaque cloth and spring rollers.

We are Busy Selling
49 CENT
Gent's White Shirts—Don't's sides, endless band that won't tear down—worth 75 cents any time.

We are Busy Selling
50 CENT
Ladies' Kid Gloves—button, and goods sold always at 50 cents.

We are Busy Selling
$1.50
Boys' Sailor Suits, made of heavy cloth and prettily trimmed.

People's Store,
A. HAMBURGER & SONS.
Nick-Meat CANNED MEATS, SIMPLEST AND BEST MADE.
One, try it a week; if not absolutely satisfied come back and get your money.
GASOLINE BY CAN OR CASE.
ALASKA REFRIGERATORS!
Guaranteed to give satisfaction.
Sinks and Grates, Stoves and Ranges.
CRANDALL, CROW & CO.,
30 and 32 N. SPRING ST.
On the Market
Boyle's Subdivision, - - Boyle Heights.
Fine, High Location, Fine View, Pure Air.
City Water Piped around the Tract.
Only 12 Lots
The lots sold at from $300 to $400 per lot. These lots are on the route of the new West Street Electric Car Line, the track of which is already laid as far as the new iron bridge that is being built. The lots are less than two miles from the Court House, and are sure to double in value as soon as the cars commence running. Don't fail to take advantage of this offer.
Strong & Blanchard,
SOLE AGENTS,
North Spring Street, Room 6, Bumiller Block.
PARK VILLA TRACT!
The grandest success of the season in real estate: 50 large, beautiful lots, all covered by magnificent brick houses, fronting on West Washington street, 20 yards west of the most lovely park, 1 1/2 city blocks, the choicest homes, the finest fruit gardens, avenues of giant Eucalyptus and Monterey Cypress trees. Size of lots, 100 ft. and 100 ft. Prices $500 to $2000. Free ride from 32 N. Spring street. If you wish to see this tract it is more desirable in value in a short time. See Free ride from 32 N. Spring street.
J. M. W. J. H. BOWMAN. THEODORE WIENHANGER.
NOW SELLING FAST!
WIENHANGER CITY TRACT,
ON Washington Street.
Features include the city, church and school. Lots 50x125 to alley. Price $150. Only $20 cash, 120 a month. No interest to pay! Small monthly savings pay for lot and in the city. Your own choice of location and immediate possession. There are handsome mansions and beautiful improved places all around. The building up very rapidly in the direction of Washington street, and in investment in this tract is more desirable in value in a short time. See Free ride from 32 N. Spring street.
Philadelphia Lager Beer!
$1.50 PER DOZEN, INCLUDING BOTTLES.
HIGHEST PRICE PAID FOR EMPTY BOTTLES.
Orders left at No. 49 North Spring Street, opposite Court House, or at BECK'S BREWERY on Alamo and Main streets Telephone No. 91 will be promptly attended to, and if